Lincoln's Address.

Mother had carefully spelled out Lincoln's address, inscribed on the cannon ball in front of the monument in Lincoln park. . . . "All men are created free and equal," she read. . . . Her small son pondered the problem for a long time, then said: "Ve wimmen, murrer, how is t'ey borned?"—Chicago American.

Gunpowder Engines.

Before 1880, when gasoline was discovered to have power possibilities, gas engines were operated by gunpowder and turpentine.

Aristocracy in Leather.

Antiquities of the Thames.

The ancient level of the Thames in England was once 130 feet above the present level. Recent discoveries in the gravel terraces have shown that men differing little from the modern type lived on the island 4,000 years ago.

Dividends Always Paid.

Sin, Incorporated, Unlimited, is at least one concern that never passed its dividends.—Boston Transcript.

True aristocracy in leather, as in human beings, manifests itself. It can be quickly recognized.—Boot and Shoe Recorder.

Can Buy Jay Rides.
Money can't do everything, but there's a tendency in human nature to be pretty well satisfied with the things it can do.

The Great Cathedrals.

They are more than buildings. . . . The work of a man, a man can understand; but these are the work of ages, of nations. Nothing is marked, nothing is clever, nothing is individual nor thrust forward as artistic; they are serene, masterly, non-personal, like works of nature—indeed, they are such, natural manifestations of the minds of men working under the impulse of a noble idea.—W. R. Leibaaby.

Words Worth Remembering.

Edward Everett stood deservedly high among intellectual giants, foremost statesmen and most eloquent orators. Once upon a time he gave expression to a thought that ought to be stamped upon every real American mind. "An intelligent people," he said, can scarcely ever be, as a class, vicious, and never, as a class, indolent. The excited mental activity operates as a counterpoise to the stimulus of sense and appetite.

"Watchdog of the Treasury."

"The watchdog of the treasury" was a title first given to Judge William Steele Holman, a United States representative from Indiana. He was elected first in 1856, and with the exception of the Thirty-ninth, Forty-ninth, Forty-fifth, Forty-sixth and Fifty-fourth congresses, served continuously until his death, April 22, 1897, in Washington. He received the "watchdog" title because of his championship of economy and his opposition to new appropriations and measures which he considered extravagant.

Versatility of Etching.

The needle is the crayon; the acid adds color. The needle is something all the more eloquent because its means of expression are confined within more restricted limits. It is familiar and lively in the sketch, which by a very little must say a great deal; the sketch is the spontaneous letter. It all but reaches the highest expressions when it is called in to translate a grand spectacle, or one of those fugitive effects of light which nature seems to produce but sparingly, so as to leave to art the merit of fixing them.—Maxime Lalanne, in "A Treatise on Etching."

Mixed Identity.

"Shay, did you see me come in?" The other chap replied, "Yes, I saw you come in?" "Well—hic—ever see me before?" "No, I never saw you before." "Then—hic—how did you know it was me?"—Syracuse Orange Peel.

For Preference.

A reader mentions the case of a detective, who, after twenty years, remembered the face of a forger, and arrested the man when the crime had almost been forgotten. One would rather have that sort of memory than that sort of face.
